

David Grammling

University of Konstanz
Department of Politics and Public Administration
Graduate School of Decision Sciences david.grammling@uni-konstanz.de

Education

- 2014- Present                      Graduate School of Decision Sciences, University of Konstanz, Konstanz, Major in Behavioral Decision Making (Supervisor: Prof. Dr. Urs Fischbacher)
- 2012 to 2014                      Master of Science in Economics
University of Konstanz, Konstanz, Germany
Title of Thesis: „An Experimental Economics Approach to Haidt's Norms“
- 2008 to 2012                      Bachelor of Science in Economics
University of Konstanz, Konstanz, Germany
Major: Quantitative Economics
Title of Thesis: „Wann kann ein Konsumenten-Boycott erfolgreich sein?“
- 2007                                      Abitur (A-levels) at Humboldt Gymnasium Ulm
Selected main subjects: Biology, History
Additional subject: Psychology

Employment

- Summer 2012                      Three-month-internship at the Fraunhofer ISI, Competence Center “Politik und Regionen”

Scholarship

2014 – Presence                      Ph.D. fellowship of the Graduate School of Decision Sciences funded by the Excellence Initiative of the German federal and state governments

Languages

German:                                  Mothertongue
English:                                 Proficient
French:                                  Elmentary

Software Skills

Office (Word, Excel, Powerpoint etc.)
Stata
z-Tree
SQL

Research Interests

Experimental and Behavioral Economics, Moral Behavior and Moral Character, Political Behavior